

Chamber carrying on, seeks new executive

Elk Point Chamber of Commerce is gearing up for another year of operation, following a decision by the majority of members present at last Wednesday's meeting to keep the organization intact.

Suggestions that the Chamber call a halt, due to dropping attendance and animosity within the group in recent months, were pushed aside and a motion to recess until early 1987 did not find a seconder.

Longtime member Ed Gregoraschuk suggested that the Chamber put the past behind it and start afresh: "Let's look to the future and get on with it." He noted that "Things have been rough before but (the problems) have always been resolved."

A two-member nominating committee was formed, and will present a slate of officers to the next meeting, October 1.

Outgoing president Murray Harper, chairing his final meeting, feels that there may be difficulty in finding members for the new executive, as it has been "hard to find volunteer help without practically begging". He also questioned the need for a Chamber at which only sixteen out of 137 members come out to meetings.

On a more positive note, Harper reported a successful year for the Chamber's Tourist Information Booth, noting "much positive response". Harper thanked Billie Friesen for her "untold hours" of volunteer work with both the booth and the tourist brochure, which was well received. The booth was operated by STEP program employee Margaret Anderson and a group of senior citizens, and was visited by a large number of tourists over the summer.

The Chamber was told that Sgt. Jim Fell of the Elk Point RCMP will be present at the October 1 meeting to outline a fan-out system formulated by his department's summer students and aimed at alerting local businesses to various problems.

Northeast situation unique, due to oil development

Rapid growth, followed by a sudden decline has caused a unique situation in northeast Alberta, Elk Point Mayor Ed Buck told the Heavy Oil and Oil Sands Advisory Committee workshop held in Grand Centre last week.

Buck presented the municipal view of the situation, while other speakers outlined the problems faced by the oil industry and the government in the wake of the slump. The workshop also featured group brainstorming sessions in which attempts were made to find some solutions to the major areas of concern.

Elk Point's efforts to cope with sudden developments in the wake of the major announcements by the oil companies and government were outlined by the mayor, who commented on the value of the impact study in planning to meet the needs of the expanding community.

Long range planning, increased social services and increased tax bases are needed to deal with the effects of growth, Buck told the gathering of representatives of municipalities, oil companies and government. More dollars are required to finance municipal debts incurred by expanding infrastructures to meet the needs of the larger populations, Buck said, and suggested that "population target areas" should be set up, with government assistance available when towns hit the target populations and require more utilities and amenities as a result.

Increased stress in areas with rapid growth, along with a disinclination to travel to find needed help, has promoted a need for more social services in the towns where this growth has occurred, Buck stated.

He also suggested that oil companies be encouraged to build their office buildings in the towns which house their workers, to

Street upgrading put to tenders

A substantial street upgrading program was announced by the Town of Elk Point late last week, with costs in the vicinity of $750,000.

Tenders are now being called for the project, which is slated for a start later this fall and completion in mid-1987.

Included in the project are major upgrading of three blocks of 57 Avenue, between 51 Street and Highway 41, four blocks of 50 Street from 51 Avenue to 55

Avenue, and one block of 51 Street from 49 Avenue to Railway Avenue. These areas will have new water lines installed before new streets, complete with curb and gutter, are laid.

Construction and paving will take place on 50 Avenue from 54 Street to 55A Street, and on 48 Avenue between 53 and 54 Streets, while 50 Avenue from 50 Street to 54 Street and 52 Avenue from 51 Street to 54 Street will be given an overlay of pavement.

Sixteen in Council race

Twelve candidates for the six Town Council chairs have joined the two mayoralty candidates and two school board trustee candidates in the running for the October 20 General Election. Incumbent John D. Williams was the lone candidate for the Hospital Board seat, and will retain his position by acclamation.

Incumbent Ed Buck and Byron Mann will contest the Mayor's seat, while five members of the present Council will be joined by seven newcomers in the upcoming campaign. Alvina Schuhmacher, Walter Lesyk, Morris Cooper, Fred Kryvenchuk and Steve Stepaniuk will attempt to retain their seats for another term, while first time candidates Sandra Giffin, Allan Frankiw, Marshall Kachmar, Lawrence Pidluzny and Roger McLaughlin, former councillor Steve Shmyr and previous candidate Stan Dmytrash will also be in the running.

School trustee incumbent June Stone will compete with newcomer Janice Van Maaron in the election.

Editor's Note: Because the official list of candidates was released only minutes before press time, we are unable to run pictures and stories on the candidates this week. Please watch for these in next week's issue.

Council plans for future

The Town of Elk Point is eagerly awaiting a reply to their application for grant funding to help with the development of the quarter section of recreation land into a regional recreation area, which will offer a variety of leisure time activities to the Elk Point area.

The Town has applied for an up-front grant of $100,000, plus $20,000 per year for 25 years, to fund the project.

The Town is also looking at a grant which would provide the necessary finances to upgrade or possibly even to reconstruct the Pioneer Circle Seniors Drop-In Centre, which is too small to provide space for all the activities the Seniors would like to host.

Council discussed further plans for future developments at Monday's regular meeting. A decision to undertake the curb and gutter portion of the street upgrading and utility line replacement program on a local improvement basis at a cost of $8.54 per frontage foot was deferred for consideration by the new Council after the October 20 election, since this work will not be undertaken until spring 1987.

The Town will be eligible for $3,902 in grant funding from Alberta Transportation, providing that vertical streets are installed in the huge culverts which run under the access to the CN property to correct a problem with sagging.

The Public Works committee will review the costs of upgrading Elk Point's Christmas street lighting, in preparation for the festive season.

Council authorized the administration to proceed with the second draw of approved debenture funds on the water supply upgrading project in the sum of $286,000, to meet expenses accrued to date. The Town has already drawn $293,492 for the project.

Following receipt of test results on pavement densities after the application of an oil fog coat, Council moved to pay 50% of the cost of the paving. An additional payment will follow approval of the test results, which now show 95.6% density, by the Town's engineer.

Council voted to provide a one-time grant of $1000 to the St. Paul and District Crisis Centre from the FCSS budget, as recommended by the FCSS Board.

A resolution of council adopted a recommendation by the Library Board on proposed changes in the operation of the Energy Information Centre in the library. The library staff will take care of the centre on a reduced basis of operation, for the sum of $150 per month paid by the ERCB.

It was noted that several small deficiencies must be corrected before the bonds for construction of the library are returned to the bonding company. (Council news continued next week.)

municipalities could contribute toward the town's expenses for recreational and other needs, from the taxes paid by acreage owners.

Buck was "impressed with the conference" and the many "good thoughts" expressed by industry and municipalities. The need to open the lines of communication "seem to have been met - now they're sitting down and talking about their problems".

Concerns addressed by the brainstorming sessions included water management, establishment of a regional energy corridor, provision of services, funding for needs specific to this area, rural planning, alleviation of social problems, and improved communications between the industry and the public.

Workshop chairman Bill Payne declared himself "fully satisfied that we made good use of our time today" and said he was "impressed with the dialogues ... which are the aim of the workshop concept."

Energy Information Hotline

By Mrs. Beverly Baylis

These are very difficult times for the oil patch, as residents of the Lindbergh Field already are well aware. Even top industry experts now are cautious about predicting future oil prices. And, it certainly doesn't take long for the impacts of falling oil prices to hit smalltown Alberta.

I suppose there are some Albertans who welcome the sudden drop in oil industry activity. But, many, many more are very concerned, both for their own futures and for the welfare of families and friends who earn their livings in or from the oil patch.

The sudden slow-down in the oil industry also has hit the ELK POINT ENERGY INFORMATION CENTRE. The Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB) originally sponsored the Centre at a time when there was a great deal of activity in the Lindbergh Field and a matching interest by citizens in knowing more about what was going on. For the first seven months of the Centre's lifetime, we were very busy. But, the last three months has seen public interest in our services drop off dramatically — just like everything else in the oil patch.

For that reason we, too, are carefully considering the future; in this case, the future of a successful experiment in community service. I have talked with the people at ERCB and we have wondered whether or not it might be more useful for them to continue updating the information at the Centre, but to turn over administration of the Centre to the very helpful staff of the Elk Point Public Library. As many of you know, my husband and I will be transferring to Edmonton sometime this fall, so my time with the Centre is limited.

ERCB would like to learn of your reactions to this idea. It would mean that a wide range of energy information still would be available for your use, but an Information Officer wouldn't be present to assist you in accessing it. However, the library staff now are quite familiar with most of the information and, as always, the expertise of ERCB's Calgary Head Office still would be only a telephone call away. Additionally, Marvin Abugov, of ERCB's Communications Group, would be available for meetings with community groups and for other kinds of information exchange.

Could I ask that readers of this column to drop Marvin Abugov a line, at 1040, 640 5th Ave. S.W. Calgary, AB, T2P 3G4 — or call him, collect, at 297-3758 to share your views regarding the future of the Centre. I know that ERCB would welcome your advice and counsel.

In the meantime, I would like to thank all of you for your generous acceptance of what I have been trying to do. I have received very welcome support, sometimes from surprising sources, and it has made me feel very good about Elk Point and the residents of the Lindbergh area.

Computers nab local law breakers — catchy headline, isn't it? The fact is that the local law breakers could be you or your neighbour. What I am talking about is those of you who refuse to pay your voluntary tickets such as speeding and stop sign violations, especially those that are received in other places.

Let me explain what happens when you fail to pay a voluntary fine and also fail to show up for court. A warrant for your arrest is issued on your court day. That warrant is then placed on the Canadian Police Information computer by the original Detachment or Police Force and if you are from the Elk Point District, we are AUTOMATICALLY notified. We then conduct the necessary inquiries and effect the arrest.

This could be the embarrassing part because when you have been arrested, you are taken to the Detachment and depending on the availability of a Judge or Justice of the Peace, you could spend some time behind bars. Don't think it can't happen to you. Several local people have been somewhat surprised by the efficiency of this system.

The reason I am bringing this to your attention is to help me save time for myself and the other members of the Detachment. We waste countless hours tracking down these warrants when we could be doing much more useful things. Please pay your tickets on time and keep your receipt handy for a month or two.

Open season

Look out -- it's open season on all unwary individuals, as clubs and organizations look for executive members for the coming year.

Scary, isn't it? We might have to give up our freedom for a few hours each week or each month to sit up in front of a roomful of people to take notes or even - GASP! - speak out on issues before the whole group. We might have to be on a phoning committee, or on a committee that goes to other meetings as representatives of our club. We might even have to (and here's a really scary word) volunteer for the 101 little jobs that make an organization a success.

No wonder we all want to stay home and hide in the potato patch! We can always go back to the club meetings after an executive is safely elected, and complain because we don't like the way they do things -- that's democracy, isn't it? And if they don't find an executive, we can stay home and gripe about the lack of interest people have in this town and its activities, that causes clubs to shut down.

But it isn't our fault -- there's lots of other people out there who'd just love to get involved -- they've been running things for years, and probably wouldn't want any help from us, anyway.

Or would they?

And they're off!

Sixteen candidates left the post Monday in three separate races for eight seats in the town of Elk Point, while seventeen more will vie for six council seats and two for one Elk Point Hospital Board seat in the County of St. Paul.

Four weeks of campaigning are now underway as election day approaches. It will be a time when promises are made in profusion as each candidate works for the optimum number of votes. Hopefully, when elected, these candidates will be able to achieve their objectives.

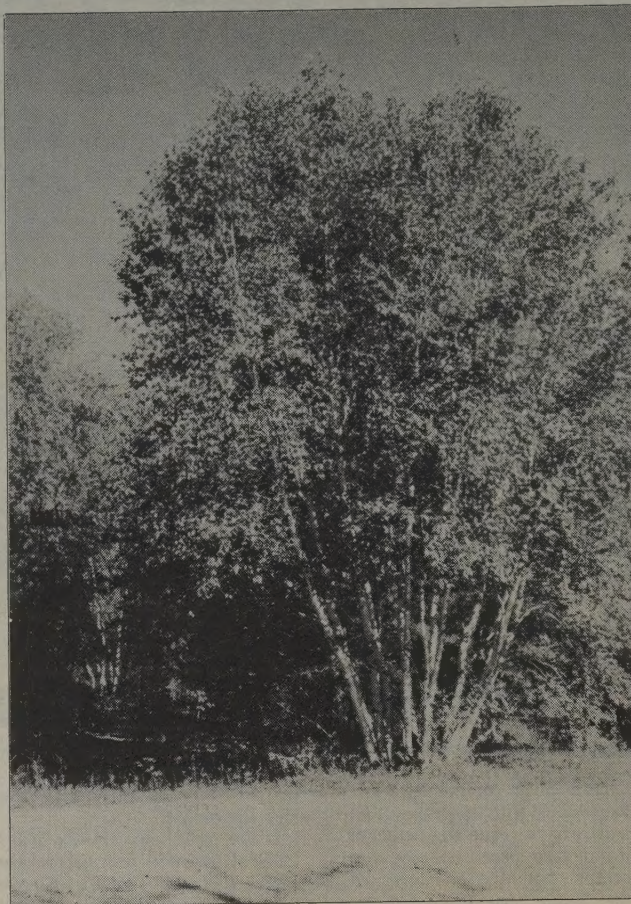

Election time is an opportunity for the voters to sort through the goals and promises to find what they want their town, or their county, to build its new foundation on. It's an opportunity to replace, to renew, to find something better.

But what must be remembered is that an election should be a process of building not a process of destroying, a positive experience as opposed to a negative experience.

There is nothing wrong with blowing one's own horn, when one is running for office. That's what a campaign is all about. But it is not right, decent or called for, to trample on your opponent's horn.

Have a good race -- and let's keep it clean.

Alberta Trails

A few trails revisited

By Irene Magnusson

We went for a Sunday drive a couple of weeks ago, heading off west on the old St. Paul highway, to 881, then north from the edge of St. Paul, past St. Vincent and Mallaig, then east on past Glendon to Bonnyville.

Not having navigated this circuit for a few years, we were of course 'all eyes' to note any changes, check the crops, new buildings, etc., or note those gone.

The crops - well, looking good certainly, with hints of harvest on the way. A kindly weather-creator should soon see an end to it.

The most noticeable change from the old somewhat-oiled trail, is the miles of brand new "cringe" road, 881, past St. Vincent and beyond. It is hard to believe, after all the years of aggravation and dismay travellers have endured on that miserable cringe road #41, north and south from Elk Point, narrow, high and scary, which many of us avoid like we would the pleasure of a drive through a slough - that road-builders have created another span of it, miles and miles of it, actually. I feel much sympathy for those drivers who will be forced to use it.

Does no one ever learn? Even now, after all those years, sleeves are being rolled up, readying for the rebuilding task on that narrow stretch of 41. Needless to say - at great cost and inconvenience to travellers and those who live along its sides.

I don't suppose any record has been kept of the vehicles that have slid off that high narrow pavement, or how many were damaged, passengers shook up or injured. Probably there is a record of the number of deaths. There will never be a record of all the drivers - and passengers - who have passed that way in fear and trembling, cringing inwardly from every vehicle they meet, almost paranoid when it is a huge truck or tanker, knowing they are only inches from collision, inches from the no-shoulder, drop-off edge. Perhaps we can get USED to is - but it never becomes safer.

On with our drive. East on 660 we encountered a bit of construction or repair going on. No complaints on that road, it is wide, smooth and inviting.

Skimming on past Glendon, we turned in on the Moose Lake Provincial Park trail, on down to the boat launch area, finding almost no one visible anywhere on this sunny Sunday of the last day of August, Labor Day weekend. A couple of boat trailers parked in the huge lot, a half-ton down at the end, no signs of boats or fishermen to be seen.

We walked down onto the pier, the lake like glass, empty and deserted. The beautiful little clumps of birch near the day-parking lot were just starting to turn. They should be a blaze of gold by now. No one in the day camp, or picnic grounds, or on the sandy beach.

As we left, we drove around one of the camping circles - and yes, there were quite a number of sites filled, but plenty empty, too. Very few persons were in sight. To me, this is one of our very nicest campsites. We went there so often over the past years, yet have seldom seen it filled. I still wonder why.

We went on to Bonnyville, then south on 28, to the junction north of Elk Point, then as I usually do, went on to the next side road, dusty gravel being preferred to the narrow pavement, and took my passengers home to town.

I also noticed along the miles, that almost all roadsides were decorated with true Alberta beauty, in the form of ugly brown-black dead bushes, trademark of the spray machines, a sort of nose-thumbing comment to the tourists, that says 'you may travel if you must, but you are not allowed to enjoy our beauty'.

Isn't it odd - in B.C. they don't spray the roadsides, in Ontario they don't spray the roadsides, in Saskatchewan they also don't do it - but we here in Alberta, who started off with more wild flowers, shrubs and small wildlife than any of them, have seen fit to willfully and systematically destroy as much of it as a powerful spray-gun will reach.

The days pass. Combining has been interrupted and resumed. I certainly hope all the farmers will be able to harvest their crops, and without the work and expense of all that drying, as occurred last year. I saw some straight combining, an unusual method for around here, and usually meaning the farmer has a dryer to fall back on.

I rejoice there is still some wildlife around, having seen a badger twice this fall, deer tracks in the field (old ones), three partridges and two pheasants. The great red-tailed hawks lurk in the tree tops, or lazily circle. I know they will win, but that is their life. Leaves have shed from the maple, revealing a robin's nest in the very top, unseen by me all summer. And my nose tells me a skunk has taken up residence under the old biffy, a burrow open at the side where he entered. I have lobbed a net bag full of mothballs down there, in hopes it will discourage him.

And, at last, after he had almost demolished my garden, my trapline has spelt doom to one pocket gopher. I could spare the peas and even all those carrots and beets, etc., he nipped into. But making big black mounds in my precious lawn was the last straw. These little grey critters look more like beavers than anything else, except for their short bare mouse-like tails. My books say they are solitary, so I will not expect another to take his place soon, although many mounds in the meadow tells me there are others around.

Ferguson Flats Correspondent

Out Heinsburg way, Fritz Younghans would like the fact be known that he is running for Councillor against Bob Smith. He says he will do as much campaigning as time will allow before election day. Since both men are from the same area, it should prove to be quite a challenging and exciting election.

I had a letter from Vina Hostved of Edmonton, (formerly of Lindbergh). She says she spent a month with her daughter Joan in Toronto. She has recently moved to a senior citizens home and would appreciate news from "home". If anyone from the Lindbergh area would like her address, I have it carefully stowed away.

The community is saddened by the sudden passing of Rolf Anderson of Lindbergh.

Hospital auxiliary North East Regional conference in Elk Point

By Irene Magnusson

Following the address given by Hon. Marvin Moore, Minister of Hospitals and Health Care in Alberta, Friday, September 12th, at the North East Regional Conference of the Alberta Hospital Association meeting in Elk Point, the group broke up into two segments, with the Hospital Auxiliary members repairing to the Pioneer Circle Hall for their meeting, while the other members continued in the Elks Hall.

Ruth Pelechaty, Regional Chairman for the NE Hospital Auxiliary, gave a report on activities of the summer, which included her attendance at the Canadian Auxiliary Convention in Edmonton in the past summer. The stress of this conference was to impress on hospital personnel the importance of treating patients as individuals, (Humanizing Technology) since the patient sometimes becomes only a number or a body, and the results of this shows in patients' recovery. Guest speaker at the convention was Roy Bonisteel, she reported.

Mable Leschuk of Mannville, has been awarded the Canadian Volunteer Award. She is the NE Region Vice-President. Shirley Kunyk, Secretary, from Vilna, read the minutes of the May conference, held in Lac La Biche.

The up-coming convention in Edmonton, November 26, has been planned. A theme of "Challenge, Choice and Change" has been selected. Persons to answer Auxiliaries' questions will be on hand, as well as speakers on the subject chosen. The Auxiliary Gift Shops (or Canteens) in hospitals will be discussed, stressing security.

Members were reminded that craft items are required for sale or raffle, as well as volunteers to man the small jobs inherent to an annual convention.

Reports were given by three auxiliaries. Doris Shortt of Lamont, stated that their group served three hospitals, with less than a dozen active members. Their activities included card parties, fashion show, farmers' market and a play, as well as a canteen, bingos and birthday parties for the patients.

Stephie Nowak reported for Mundare. With over 25 members, they are able to visit patients, collect for Red Cross, conduct a bake sale, observe Heritage Day, sell spoons, T-shirts, hold a tea. As well, each member 'adopts' an Extended Care patient, giving individual attention as required. This is a very successful effort.

From Redwater, Vicki Bochanesky reported 52 members, who carry on a great many projects, which include canteen, library, magazines, New Year's baby gifts and a showcase. They plant flowers, look after Meals-on-Wheels, have a history display, work for Red Cross and other activities. All groups raise funds to purchase needed equipment for their respective hospitals.

The matter of each Auxiliary having a Registered Charitable Group number, for Income Tax purposes was discussed again. Some felt there was little need for this, others felt they could use the number of their respective hospital. More will have to be learned regarding this matter. Better government cooperation would be helpful.

Following the reports, members spent some time admiring the display offered by the Elk Point Auxiliary, of handicraft articles made for sale in their canteen, a large display of photos, showing a graphic history of past activities, and the commemorative cups, spoons and plates the group has for sale at all times. The hall was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers and a display of antique articles. Later, three door prizes were drawn for.

Following a most elaborate meal in the Elks dining area, the two groups met again to hear a report from guest speaker, Dr. Stephen Zepp, of the W.W. Cross Cancer Clinic in Edmonton.

This 76-bed hospital is the major cancer hospital in the province, with lesser units in Calgary and Red Deer. Some 35,000 out-patients are treated, as well as those who come in for radiation and other treatments, he said. Dr. Zepp would like to see an expansion of the facilities, to perhaps 150 beds, since there is presently a fairly long waiting period for many patients to receive the care they require. He feels there could be treatment centres (or a centre) at either Lac La Biche or Ft. McMurray, at some future date.

The Alberta Cancer Board is a provincially appointed group, who work out of Calgary or Edmonton. A number of research programs are in progress at any time, Dr. Zepp stated, some quite advanced, in the Cancer Clinic.

Ukrainian Orthodox bishop to visit Elk Point

On Sunday, Sept. 28 at 9:30 a.m., His Grace Bishop John of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church of Canada will be greeted at St. Volodymyr's Ukrainian Orthodox Church in Elk Point. The last time an Orthodox bishop visited Elk Point was in 1962, making this visitation a very special occasion. A large gathering of worshippers from near and far are expected to join Bishop John in prayer.

Bishop John is one in an unbroken succession of bishops stretching back through history to the Apostles themselves. The Apostles were the first bishops of the Orthodox Christian Church. To the Orthodox Church, this "Apostolic Succession" is considered one of the proofs of its validity as the first of all Christian churches. It is the responsibility of Orthodox bishops to maintain the truth and unity of the Christian religion. Bishop John is the spiritual leader of over 40,000 Ukrainian Orthodox Christians in the diocese of Alberta and British Columbia.

The bishop's visit to Elk Point is made necessary by the many changes and improvements that have been made to St. Volodymyr's church. Inside, the church has been made more comfortable, painted and decorated. Outside, three hani (domes) have been added to give it the unique appearance of a proper Orthodox temple of worship.

Domes are considered a very important feature of an Orthodox church. In their roundness, they follow the outline of the sky, and remind people of Heaven above. In their height they remind people to raise their thoughts, hope and prayers to God above, as well as to strive to be accepted by God into Heaven after life on this earth.

St. Volodymyr's church is named in honor of a 10th-century Ukrainian prince who accepted Orthodox Christianity from Greece as the official religion of the nation of Rus', now called Ukraine.

One of the definitions for literacy is: "A person is literate when he has acquired the essential knowledge and skills which enable him to engage in all those activities in which literacy is required for effective functioning in his group and community."

The logo represents the Alberta Association for Adult Literacy. Do you know that one in five Albertans cannot read and write very well?

There is a program called LEARN (Literacy Education and Reading Network), sponsored by Lakeland College that will benefit those needing help. Students register with the program and receive individualized instruction from a volunteer trained as a tutor.

Information about the LEARN Program is available from the LEARN Monitor at Lakeland College. If you want to volunteer as a tutor or enroll as a student, call 724-4265 or 645-3276 or drop in at the Lakeland College Office.

Valley Pine off to good start

By Irene Magnusson

Some businesses in Elk Point area may be feeling the pinch, but the slow-down has not deterred one group of young people from commencing a new and different enterprise - and so far results have been encouraging.

A local farmer has allowed use of his farmyard and a large Quonset-type building for this new enterprise to set up in. That three of the group are his sons just could have something to do with that.

Ron, Rick and Don Pilisko, sons of Walter and Josephine Pilisko, together with Dave Shankowski and Roger Yoneliunas (who instigated the project), both local boys, have teamed up to become "Valley Pine", furniture manufacturing company, just a few miles northwest of Elk Point.

Here, since early spring, the group have been constructing bedroom dresser sets for a furniture sales outlet in Calgary. Roger had been building some furniture before and Dave had some carpentry training - the others "learn as they go along", Rick stated.

Materials used - all solid pine, mortised construction, which must be very dry - are purchased in Calgary or Edmonton, since these materials are not available locally. They try to "stay away from particle board and nails", Rick said. Only solid wood, glue and screws are used to assemble the parts.

A respectable assortment of power tools are required, table saws, sanders, jointer, presses, etc., etc., and the group was fortunate enough to purchase a number of them from NAIT, in a used, but very good condition. Sawdust is vented outside from the large sander, and in general, the building is kept neat and tidy. There will have to be some insulating done before winter, Rick says, and perhaps more heat, to allow continuing work year round.

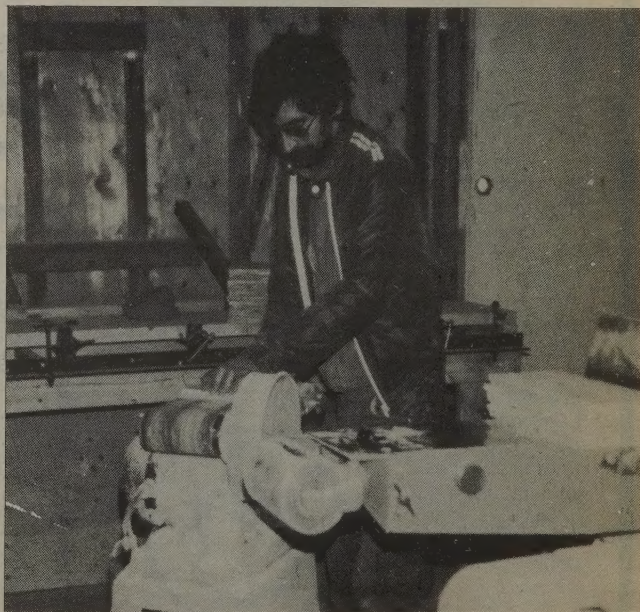

Before construction sets in, a jig must be created. This allows pieces to be cut to a certain shape, the same every time, without re-measuring, ensuring that they will fit when put together. Then the various parts are created, smoothed and sanded, and assembled.

The group are able to make approximately ten sets of furniture per week, each set consisting of a six-drawer dresser, with mirror, a five drawer chest, and a two-drawer bedside table. The wood is smooth and satiny, with lovely pine two-tone grain. Since Valley Pine are not (as yet) equipped to finish the pieces, they are shipped to the dealer unfinished. Rick hopes they will one day be able to add this feature to their work, and then perhaps will be able to sell the product locally.

The three Pilisko boys, who have variously been working away from home before the company was formed, now live with their parents, with mother Josephine doing the cooking - surely a neat arrangement for them. They are close enough to town for all conveniences, yet are able to look out over the beautiful Kehewin valley, where the autumn colors are breathtaking.

A let's-try-it attitude, and energetic enterprise can "make it happen".

Dewberry News Roundup

By Cliff Cunningham
Dewberry Correspondent

There was a mistake in last week's news about the people that came to our birthday and anniversary party that was put in the Vermilion Standard. It should have been Mable Hagen (nee Bekkerus) of Peace River and Fay Good (nee Cunningham) of Vermilion. We all make mistakes (I make a lot of them).

The Dad's and Son's old time orchestra that played at our party on Aug. 30 seem to have got some of our elderly people and others wanting to have old-time dancing in Dewberry. I went around and now have one hundred names that are interested and more to come. I belong to the Dewberry Lions' and went to their meeting, Sept. 11th. We decided to try old-time dancing once a month in the Dewberry Hall and our first dance will be Friday, November 7th.

These dances are not just for old people. You younger folks are welcome to join us and learn some different kind of dancing, just like the good old days, when grandma and grandpa were young.

We need a large crowd to have a few dollars left over to help us finish some work to be done on our hall.

It was sad news when we heard that Helen Featherstone of Islay passed away August 24th in the General Hospital in Edmonton and was laid to rest in the Vermilion Cemetery, September 5th. She will be sadly missed in Islay as she was Islay's news reporter for the Vermilion Standard. I hope someone takes her place at writing the Islay news. We are all in sympathy with all her relatives and friends.

Another old timer of the Rusylvia district passed away. Ellen Nellie Geake the wife of Earl Geake passed away August 24th at her home in Elnora, Alberta. She was a sister of Alice Parker and the Davies of Vermilion and Dewberry. We are all in sympathy with her husband and all her relatives. Nellie and Earl lived in Vermilion for a few years after they moved from Rusylvia many years ago.

The Dewberry Farmers Market was held in the curling rink booth September 11th and drew a good crowd with the ladies helping out at serving lunch.

Doris Spicer called in on Sunday and took Marge and I and Rose Sinclair for a long drive up around Ross Lake, Laurier Lake and Whitney Lake ending up in Elk Point for supper.

After leaving Elk Point we came home by the Landonville district where all of the oil wells and pumping stations are, as Rose had never seen them. It is nice to go driving out in the country this time of the year and take a look at all different colors of the trees and bush before the leaves fall off. A hard frost would change all of that beautiful scenery.

There is not much combining done in that part of country we drove though, a lot of swathing done and some grain still standing. It could be a late harvest as we didn't see any combines running.

We have had cool, damp weather for the last four days with a light rain on September 12th. No killing frost yet as the flowers in Dewberry are still blooming and my nine foot sunflower is still growing and never headed out yet. Also our strawberries are producing and loaded with green one's. Today, September 15th, it is cloudy and looks like we are going to get rain or snow. This last week it's been from 32 above to 66 above degrees F.

THE WAY IT WAS — Landonville Store in early years, as it was pictured in the "Landonville Trails" book, drawn by Shirley Osinchuk.

Clandonald News

By Shirley Osinchuk
Clandonald Correspondent

Ten miles north and two miles west of Clandonald is the old Landonville store. Mr. and Mr. Jack Landon built it eighty years ago, in 1906.

The trip by road to Vermilion was about fifty miles, by way of Dewberry. The Landonville store became the focal point of a large area, as a new road was built to the east of Clandonald (Wellsdale at that time), and mail was delivered to Landonville once a week. The next year a straight road was built to Vermilion, known as the Landonville Trail, and the Louise Lake School was built one mile east of the store.

A telephone was installed in the store in 1913.

The store burned down in the winter of 1922, but was replaced by a large, modern store with electricity, furnace and public phone booth. The mail and passengers were carried twice a week by horse-drawn sleigh in winter and truck in summer. Later the mail was delivered from Clandonald.

The upper level of the building was a community hall, with a hardwood floor for dancing, and the living quarters were at the back on the ground floor.

For many years, Mrs. Alma Smith lived in and ran the Landonville store. She was forced to move to St. Paul, due to failing health, late in 1977.

In the past year or two, the foundation has cracked and the building shifted, making it unsafe and beyond repair. It is being carefully dismantled and the materials re-used.

A landmark will soon disappear from our view, but not from our memory. A painting of it hangs in the Vermilion Hospital. It has been pictured and written about in the "Landonville Trails" book, and many people still have memories of the Landonville store.

AND THE WAY IT IS — Landonville Store is in the process of being dismantled, as another landmark disappears from view.
